

We might be a day too late for Halloween-related apps, but some goodies are just too good to pass no matter what the day or occasion is. Zombiematic Camera is an app which is a perfect solution for having fun with your friends' or your own photos and creating some really cool horror pictures from them. The biggest plus point of this app is that it is extremely easy to use and the entire editing process takes no more than a few seconds. You just have to see the results this app yields to believe how good it is.

Since the app is named Zombiematic Camera, the primary mode of action is to snap a photo using the app's own camera. However, there is an option to load an image of your choice from the Photos library. Once you snap a new picture or import one from the library, Zombiematic Camera will automatically detect the faces (called "victims") in the photo and overlay each with a translucent skeletal mask. You can choose the faces you want to zombiefy by tapping on these masks.

You can rotate, pinch to resize and drag to adjust each mask over the victims face so that it is perfectly aligned before applying the final changes. Try to have the eyes of the mask and the face aligned perfectly and keep the mask within the contour of the face for best results. Once you are satisfied with the adjustments, hit Infect.
