

Facebook has a dedicated chat app for both iOS and Android called Messenger and it is slowly making the app more and more independent of the main Facebook app. Facebook chat on the web is still well integrated into the website itself and I'm not complaining. I do not want to have to install a desktop app or visit a different website just to chat with my friends on Facebook.

What I would like is to be able to pop out the chat window and close Facebook altogether. Facebook Chat Pop-Outs is a Chrome extension that lets you do just that. If you've used Google Hangouts then you will be familiar with this option being present there in the form of a little arrow button on the chat window's title bar. The extension adds the same button and when clicked, your chat window pops out of the browser but remains fully functional.

Install the extension and refresh Facebook. In the screenshots below, you can see the difference and the newly added pop-out arrow button in the image on the right.

Share this with your friends, click on the share button, you can share this on Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, YouTube, Google+, and many other social media sites.
