

Desktop apps that let you view feeds from different social media accounts aren't rare but if you want something that can run in your browser, Feedient might be the answer. It's a web app that connects with your Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram accounts (YouTube coming soon) and lets you view feeds from all of them. Apart from Instagram, you can also post to your account and interact with the content e.g. reply to a comment or tweet. The app gives you a nice column view for each account and the columns can be moved around to suit your preference. The interface is nice and clean and seemingly free of bugs. Feedient is currently in closed beta but you can sign up for the service and a code should be in your inbox in a week or so.

The first order of business is to add your accounts. Go to settings and click Add account. You will have to authorize Feedient to connect with whichever social media account you are adding. Once you're done, click 'Feeds' to view your feeds.

The screenshot displays the Feedient application interface, divided into two main sections: 'Accounts' and 'Feedient account' settings.

Accounts Section:

- Header: 'Accounts' with a group of people icon.
- Account List:
 - Twitter: FatiWahab (with a close icon 'x')
 - Facebook: Fatima Wahab (with a close icon 'x')
 - Instagram: fatiwahab (with a close icon 'x')
- Action: A large green button labeled '+ Add account' is positioned below the list.

Feedient account Section:

- Header: 'Feedient account' with a gear icon.
- LANGUAGE: A dropdown menu showing 'English (UK)' with a flag icon.
- EMAIL ADDRESS: A text input field containing 'fatima@addictivetips.com'.
- CURRENT PASSWORD: An empty text input field.
- NEW PASSWORD: An empty text input field.
- REPEAT NEW PASSWORD: An empty text input field.
- Action: A large green button labeled 'Save settings' is at the bottom.

Left Sidebar (Navigation):

- Home icon (pencil in a square)
- Feeds icon (three horizontal lines)
- Settings icon (gear)
- Feedback icon (megaphone)
- Log Out icon (arrow pointing right)

Facebook, and again, we can't find the link for the Instagram feed, but we can find the link for the Twitter feed.

The screenshot displays the Feedient application interface, which is designed to aggregate social media feeds from multiple platforms. On the left, a dark sidebar contains navigation options: a pencil icon for editing, a menu icon for 'Feeds', a gear for 'Settings', a megaphone for 'Feedback', and a lightning bolt for 'Log Out'. The main content area is divided into three vertical panels. The left panel shows an Instagram post from 'Cats of Instagram' (@cats_of_instagram) featuring a photo of a ginger cat and a text description. The middle panel displays a Twitter feed with posts from 'Forbes Tech News' and several users, including 'samia ch' and 'Maham?'. The right panel shows a Facebook feed with a post from 'Ria Raja' about pizza and another from 'Sobi Hussein'. Each post includes an 'Expand' button and interaction icons like 'Like' and 'Comments'.

and posted on Facebook, or you can post on Twitter, or you can post on Facebook, or you can post on Instagram, or you can post on all of them at once.

