

When it comes to smartphones, black is the color everyone loves. That is the reason most of the modern devices are manufactured in black, and this rule holds true for iOS devices as well. Even the operating system within iDevices has subtle shades of black to it. The uniformity, in fact, is broken only in the status bar of iPhone, iPad or iPod touch, where the bar remains black when you are on the Springboard of your device, but as soon as an app is launched, the bar turns grey. If you are a stickler for detail, then this change of color is sure to annoy you. That is why there is a solution for that now. Meet Blackout, a new Cydia tweak that makes sure that the status bar on your iDevice always remains black, no matter in what part of iOS you are.

Related Articles:

1. Super Status Bar: Android Status Bar Replacement With Customizable Background
2. [Status Via – Share Facebook Status Updates Under Disguise! \[Android\]](#)
3. Black SMS: Encrypt Text Messages On iPhone Without Jailbreaking

Read more