

No one can doubt the fact that a lot of people bought iPhone 4S just because of Siri, but when you get down to it, Siri is pretty limited in many aspects. For example, it lets you create reminders with incredible ease, but if you want to tweet through Siri, or ask it to update your Facebook status for you, things aren't all that easy. That's why the new Notification Center widgets InstaFacebook and InstaTwitter can prove to be useful for both Siri-enabled and other iOS devices. The tweaks let you post Twitter and Facebook updates through the Notification Center of your iPhone, and if you don't want to type anything, just hit the microphone icon and speak whatever you want to post to your social network! Both the widgets support 38 languages, and come with options to make changes to the dictated text manually as well. Head past the break for details.

Related Articles:

1. [QuickTweet: Post Twitter Updates From iOS Notification Center \[Cydia\]](#)
2. [ClipboardEdit: Edit iPhone Clipboard Text From Notification Center \[Cydia\]](#)

3. [SiriLaunch: Add A Shortcut For Siri In Notification Center \[Cydia\]](#)

Read more