

Note-taking is a highly productive activity, and when it comes to jotting down your notes and appointments, Evernote is simply an unparalleled contender (okay, there's also OneNote, but then again, it's not available for free). Evernote has flourished the concept of how we can annotate and synchronize our work across different devices, making it at our disposal wherever we go. We have covered plentiful alternative note management applications for all major platforms as well, such as CintaNotes, which syncs notes in real-time via Dropbox. Today, we have another one for you called

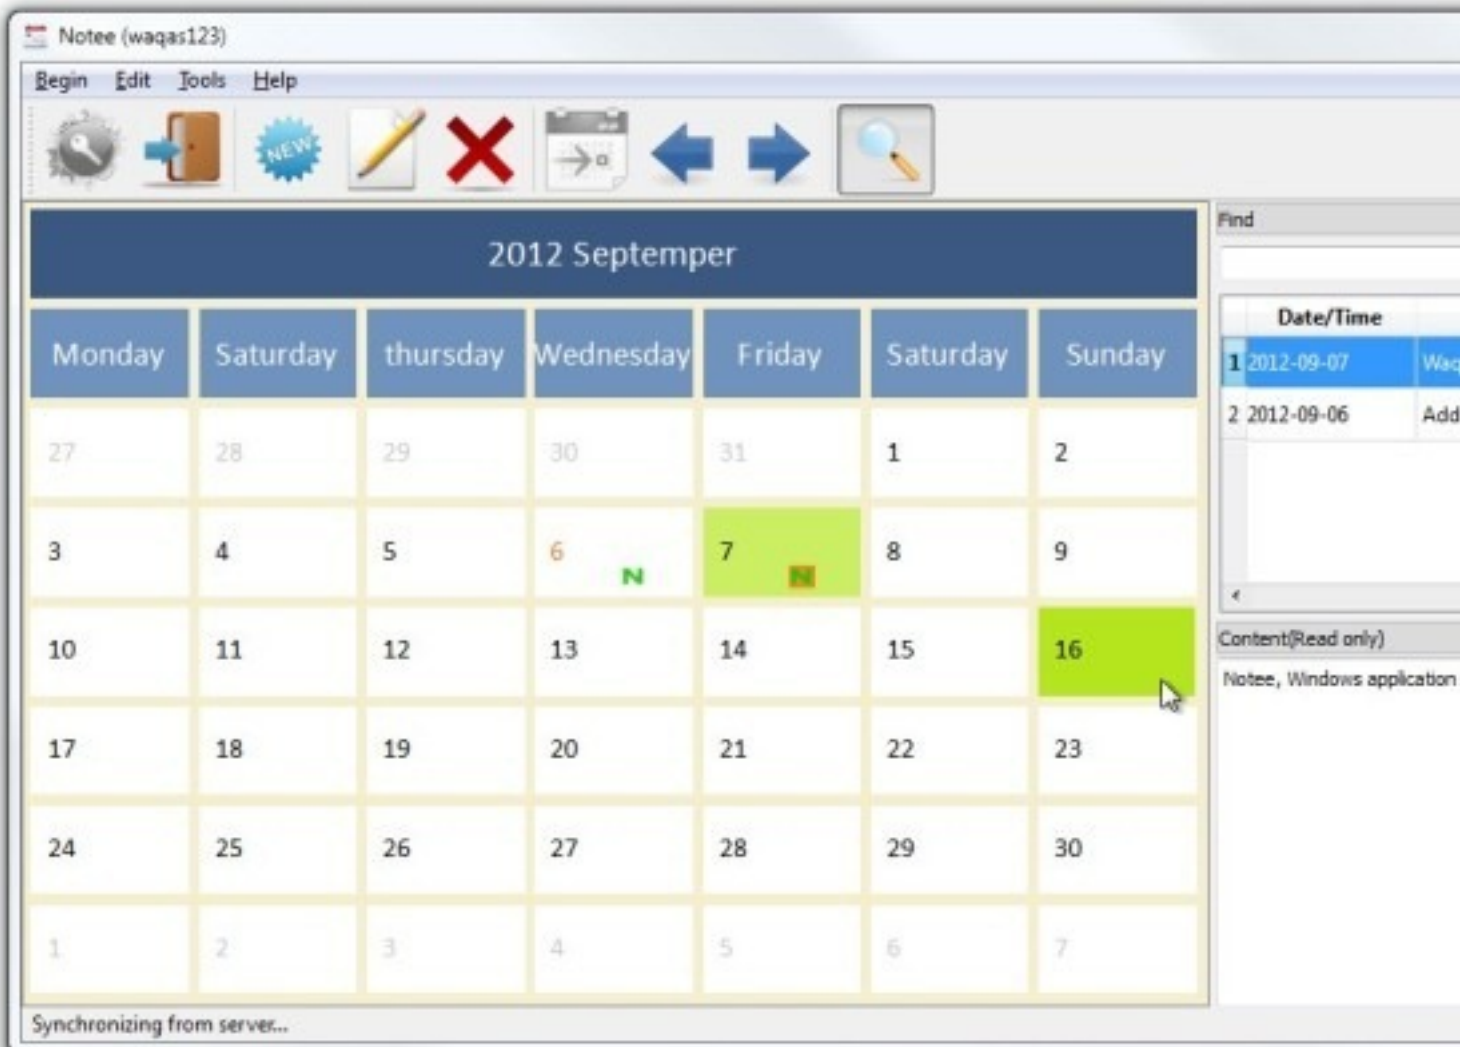

Notee

. Akin to Evernote, the application effectively syncs your notes and other agenda between Windows and Mac machines (no Android or iOS love yet). Along with that, it provides remote storage access through the web browser, for which you'd obviously need a Notee user account first.

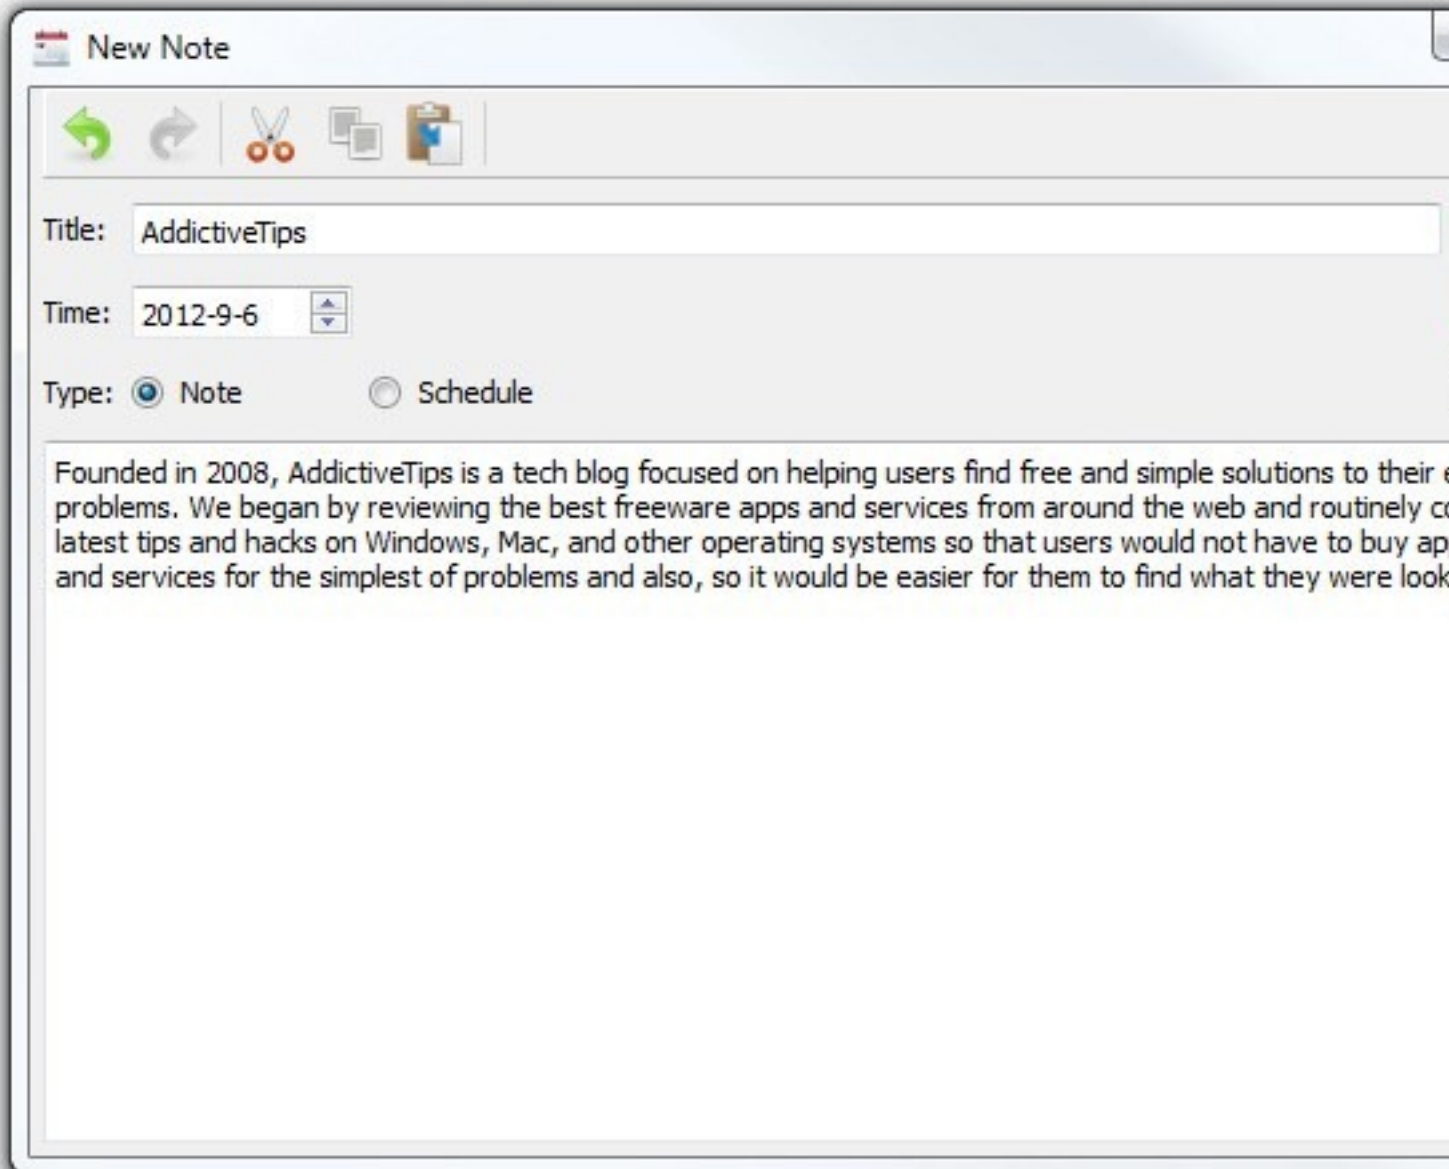

You can either complete the sign up process through web or from within the desktop client, whichever seems suitable. After successfully signing up (which doesn't even require a confirmation email), enter your User Name and Password into the application and click the login button to get started.

The interface of Notee is not something jaw-dropping, as it looks plain and simple. There's a preview panel to the right, which displays all the saved notes, as well as provides preview of the content itself. The feature that is quite commendable however, is its integrated calendar (Evernote lacks any calendar integration). This calendar provides legend symbols for Notes and Scheduling (N and S, respectively), so you can easily keep an eye on your day to day agenda. You can either click New on the toolbar or Double-click your preferred date to store a new note.

Simply click on the calendar icon in the toolbar to open the calendar window. To store a new note, click on the date in the calendar and then click on the "NEW" button in the toolbar. To edit a note, click on the note in the list on the right and then click on the "EDIT" button in the toolbar. To delete a note, click on the note in the list on the right and then click on the "DELETE" button in the toolbar. To search for a note, click on the magnifying glass icon in the toolbar and then enter the search text in the search box.

Note: When you install the application, it takes a while to set up, but you can also use the desktop Net,
