

Recently, we covered Hubbl, an app discovery client for iOS that allowed users to come across interesting apps by showing a sky-like view of recommendations.

App Map

is a pretty similar app, but it focuses on your location rather than providing a fancy view of app suggestions. This iPhone app allows you to view the apps that have been popular among other users from a particular region for the current day. You can use App Map to see the rankings of apps in your country, or any region of your interest. The app can also be used to find apps that are similar to the ones you have on your iDevice. The list of apps you are currently using will be made visible by App Map to other users of the service who are nearby. Don't worry though, this will be done anonymously, and the app will not be accessing any of your app data.
